“ To Kay and all of your family. Harvey was my first inspiration in wildfowl carving. He was a great teacher and helper, but most of all, a friend. We cannot replace him, but The Lord will help to always remember the wonderful man he was to you, his family, and to us, his friends. “ Kay, please know we are keeping all of you in our thoughts and prayers, upon Harvey's passing. My oldest son, Spencer, was so incredibly fond of Harvey. You may recall, many years ago, we made an "emergency" trip to your house to pick up some glass eyes for one of Spencer's decoys, THE DAY BEFORE A COMPETITION! Harvey was so generous with his time, talents, & guidance. Spencer hung on every word of advice that Harvey shared with him...we especially loved the story Harvey relayed about dropping one of his world-entry carvings, as he was putting it into the car to drive to Maryland for the World Carving Championships. Harvey reminded Spencer, "Always take some glue and extra paint with you, just in case..." Harvey was instrumental in igniting Spencer's passion for decoy carving. Spencer, in turn, shared that passion with his younger brother, Clay, so we have all been incredibly blessed by Harvey's friendship.

Rest in peace, dear pal.

Fondly,

Denise V. Tinkham & family##imported-begin##Denise V. Tinkham##imported-end##

“ Harvey was an all around wonderful gentleman. It didn't matter if you needed a 2 dollar brush, an expensive machine or just some good advice Harvey was there for you. He was an outstanding instructor, always adding a little humor, giving clear instructions and keeping us straight. Along the way we are fortunate to meet a few real people. I met Harvey.##imported-begin##Ed Morrison##imported-end##

“ Kay and family; Our prayers are so with you all at this most difficult time. Harvey was so much a part of our lives too, and while we find it difficult to accept this loss, the years of memories are now more important than ever. We hold you in our prayers, which, as I write the words they seem small, but the love that writes them is anything but small. Love, Nancy##imported-begin##Dr. Nancy Alford##imported-end##
