“ Julia and Frank and I often had lunch at the same place, The Diner, on northern Colley Avenue. I knew Frank from working with him at the Dept. of City Planning and he was my go- to person whenever I had to decipher City Planning terms, as I took the minutes for the hearing and meetings. He was always pleasant, and amusing, at the same time. After Frank passed away, I missed Julia, and planned to get in touch. She was such an interesting person. She even played the clarinet. They were great favorites at the restaurant and personal friends with the owner. But it closed, things changed around in my life, and the Pandemic came. I will always remember her fondly. She seemed a woman ahead of her time. --Myreen Moore Nicholson
